WHEAT AND FLOUR.

A Slight Falling Off in Production at Minneapolis Compared Here.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—The Northwestern millers will say Friday: With the exception of a slight falling off in production the situation on the 1st is very much the same that it was here for a number of weeks. Toward the close of last week the necessity with modern milling of prompt to move wheat, causing it to break and run to grades with a slight shortage of power, for a few of the mills here, accompanied by shutdowns, and since the report 5,000 barrels. The total output last week was 135,000 barrels—an average of 27,000 barrels daily against 30,000 barrels the preceding week. This is the first week on this crop where the production has not shown an increase. The low, extreme, and net result because of any desire to restrict production, as each mill is crowded as much as it can without over-grading work. The old question of demurrage seems to rest in having grading done after the wheat has been in store a few days, and the elevator people are suffering somewhat from their prompt handling during the heavy grinding season. The shipments of flour continue very light, there not being enough cars to move the product. The following are the shipments of flour from Minneapolis for the week ending the dates given:

A CATTLE-LADEN STEAMER.
An Immense Cargo and a Passenger Problem.

New York, Nov. 10.—[Special.]—A fine steamer got a pretty consignment of cattle from Galveston at Castle Garden. In a day or two she will start for Glasgow on the 4th of a prospective number of that route this month. She has a cargo of 2,000 cattle, and had a full quota of passengers, which have been coming in for several days. She was loaded very quickly under the direction of the Secretary of Health Darlington, the protection of 2,000 cattle to each one employed him. Each man was provided with a bunk, and was put on Europe before that day. The Scotland Steamer and their crew made Engineer and each precaution as the cattle herds, but were willing to see that the cattle were properly cared for. The Secretary and their crew were closed to make up the navigation.

Under the regulation, members of Commissioners Societies, Boards, Managers, and others, were not to be entrusted to investigate the conditions of affairs. Commissioner Darlington, who is a member of the committee, did not share in. There were present, besides the committee, Commissioners Cole, Waterbury, Crouch, and Layton. The committee went into secret session for about two minutes to decide upon what witnesses should be brought before it, after which the committee were admitted and the hearing, although there were a number of prominent people present, offered no hand who seemed to be present at the investigation.

Dr. Stevens was the first person questioned. Commissioner Darlington asked that the object of the meeting was to investigate certain charges against the management of the institution, but first of all to inquire into the contents of the report of the trustees to the County Board concerning the discharge of Miss Goodchild, the nurse. Dr. Stevens being the principal person,

Dr. Stevens explained in substance: "The first time I came into contact with Miss Goodchild was in the matter of getting through the civil service examination, with the patients. Miss Goodchild refused to come down, and put on her own street dress and went out to see her friends. She was discharged for this, and then reinstated on the ground that she had been misled by the attendant who had given her the order. She was then discharged from the service, and I was informed that she had been reinstated by the Civil Service Commissioners. I then refused to receive her back, and she was discharged. Miss Goodchild then came to my office and asked me to give her a recommendation. I refused to do so, and told her that I would not do so. She then went to the Civil Service Commissioners and asked them to give her a recommendation. They refused to do so, and she then went to the Board of Commissioners of Public Charities

THE TWO CONSTITUTIONS.

The difference in fairness and manliness between the Republican and Democratic National Committees is shown by a comparison of their appeals to the country. The one was sensible and dignified; the other was incendiary and seditious. The one was an appeal to the people; the other was an appeal to the mob. The Republican Committee for this task, issued its address as follows:

The Republican National Committee in taking the usual course of their predecessors in addressing the people of the United States, at the time when the votes are being cast for the electors who are to choose a President of the United States, deem it proper to call attention briefly to the principles which they represent and the claims which they present to the confidence of the American people.

The issue of the presidential election, founded on the contingencies, is that the country has a prosperity of unusual volume and of that to all every business man, and moreover that to the public service. That the party intrusted with the administration of the government has been faithful to every trust reposed in it by the people, and has performed its duties in the interest of the whole country and not for the benefit of any class or section.

That the Democratic party has failed to meet the pledges upon which it was entrusted with power, and has shown itself incapable of conducting the affairs of the country in the interest of the people.

That the Democratic party has failed to maintain the rights of the people against the aggressions of the Democratic party in the States, and

GEN. EARLE LETTER.

London, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The question of the imposition of penal sum or upon the Irish members of Parliament and subscribed bail now brought to the front again in both England and France. In this country the question, which is a certainly important to the people of Ireland, has been received by a formal resolution from the citizens to various meetings, a committee of investigation having visited Ireland for that purpose. Mr. Parnell, M. P., who is in Troy and an ardent gentleman, they represented to the to which they had been subjected by the action of Government officials, and which they claimed were in violation of national constitutional rights guaranteed to them by the Government referred to had been discriminating favor against English people. The granting of bounties had as their effect of import duties, but the practical effect was English consumers that just to had as was more. A longer manufacturers, to be exact, would produce any given article more cheaply than the English competitors [illegible] part of the cost was caused to him by the Government. The first result of this was, of course, to shut out the English article from Ireland, because it could not compete to give with the home-made article. Next, it to the great benefit of British goods in all markets of the world by placing them under an artificial disadvantage in competition with the favored producers. It even destroyed the home market for English goods, because it made it to the interest of Irish manufacturers to purchase their raw material from abroad instead of from England. Finally—and this was the most serious of the case in the opinion of the Irish people—the system of bounties and import duties rendered English manufacturers so entirely unable to compete against foreign that they were compelled to close their works altogether. The petitioners complained that the Government refused to allow them to import their machinery free of duty, although it was admitted that no machinery was manufactured in Ireland which was suitable for their purposes. J. D. Lockhart, a resident of Scott street, in addition to a severe beating at the hands of Baxter avenue toughs Monday evening, have had everything taken from him that could be carried away, even the bedding and clothing of his children. Lockhart moved to Chicago from Kansas, and has been in this city but a few days. He is employed as a driver for Hunter & Co., and was on his way home from work when he was attacked. Dr. Chatterton's ambulance was called to the house, and the physician found that Lockhart had received a severe scalp wound, and was otherwise badly bruised. He was taken to the County Hospital.

A PERFECT BAKING POWDER.

The great success of the Royal Baking Powder is due to the extreme care exercised by the manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care, and skill attained by a twenty years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no pharmaceutical preparation can be dispensed with a greater accuracy, precision, and exactness. Every article used is absolutely pure. A number of chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact power and effect in combination with its co-ingredients is definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials who is not an expert in his particular branch of the business. As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome, and uniform in quality. Each box is exactly like every other, and will retain its powers and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at any time. The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking Powder at the head of the list for strength, purity, and wholesomeness, and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

SECRETARY MCCULLOCH'S VIEWS UPON THE TARIFF QUESTION AND THE TREASURY RESERVE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Secretary McCulloch has written a letter to the chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Kentucky, in which he says: "I am not in favor of a tariff for revenue only, but I am in favor of such a tariff as will afford adequate protection to the labor and capital employed in the various industries of the country, and which will secure to the laborer employment at remunerative wages. I am in favor of such a tariff as will encourage the production of the precious metals, and thereby increase the circulating medium of the country. I am in favor of such a tariff as will secure to the United States the control of the markets of the world for the products of our mines, our forests, our farms, our workshops, and our commerce. I am in favor of such a tariff as will enable the United States to compete successfully with the manufacturers of Europe in the markets of the world
